PREFACE

For many years Mr. R. C. Christie, who had held the Professorships of History, of Political Economy, and of Jurisprudence in the Owens College (incorporated with the University of Manchester in 1904), had cherished the hope of seeing the College provided with a building for its Library, and had determined, in the event of no library being built during his lifetime, to provide by will for the erection of one. In 1892 the Whitworth legatees (of whom Mr. Christie was one) purchased and presented to the Owens College the valuable historical library formed by Professor Freeman, and the acquisition of this Collection, consisting of over 6000 volumes, emphasized the need for increased and more suitable library accommodation. In the following year Mr. Christie, finding that (in his own words) "it seemed not impossible for me to carry out my wishes in my lifetime," addressed a letter to the Council offering to build a library at his own expense, and his generous offer was gratefully accepted. The building, known as the "Christie Library," was commenced in 1895, and was formally opened by the Duke of Devonshire in 1898.

Mr. Christie's interest in the University Library was further shown by his decision that his own private library should eventually find a permanent home in the Christie Library, and in 1901, shortly after Mr. Christie's decease, the Collection was received and placed in a room reserved for the purpose. A full description of the character and scope of the Collection will be found in the Introduction to this volume, written by Mr. Christie himself. The Collection numbers about 8000 volumes, many of which possess an added interest by having been previously owned by well-known book-collectors—such as J. A. de Thou, the Marqués de Morante, Dr. Kloss, and N. Yemeniz—or by having been bound by English and Continental binders of repute.

In the main, the "Cataloguing Rules" compiled by the Rules Committees of the English and American Library Associations have been followed. Writers of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, whose works are wholly or mainly in Latin, are indexed under the Latin form of their name, exceptions being made in the case of those authors whose writings are chiefly in the vernacular, e.g. Bembo, Pietro Aretino, &c. In each case, cross-references are given from the alternative form.

Anonymous works are entered under the name of the author, when known. Otherwise, they are indexed under the name of any person or place with which they deal or under the first substantive in the title.

Pseudonymous works are entered under the real name of the author, unless the pseudonym was exclusively used or is better known, e.g. Peter Pindar, J. B. Egnatius, Stendhal, &c. Cross-references are given in each case.

Library Catalogues are indexed under the name of the library or the owner, and Peerage Claims under the name of the peerage.

In transcribing the titles of Greek books, accents have been omitted and contractions have been replaced by the letters they represent. For the sake of brevity, Greek imprints have been translated into English.

Annotations have, for the most part, been limited to records of early printers, binders, and former owners, these notes being also given in collective form in the series of appendices. Where considered useful, references have also been made to bibliographical works.

In the case of Incunabula which are either not included, or are imperfectly described, in Hain and Copinger, full bibliographical details have been recorded.

In the preparation of this catalogue, invaluable assistance has been rendered by Mr. Cree, formerly secretary to Mr. Christie, who has also furnished much information (which otherwise would have been unrecorded) regarding the provenance of many of the books, and has read through the proof sheets. The excellent services rendered by my colleague, Miss E. M. Jackson, B.A., both in the compilation of this volume and in the correction of proofs, are also deserving of special mention. Thanks are also due to my former colleague, Mr. A. F. C. Davey, now Librarian to the Manchester Medical Society, for his share in the work of compilation, and to Mr. L. Lailavoix, M.A., for assistance in proof-reading.

Although every care has been exercised to ensure accuracy, it should be stated that this catalogue has been compiled under the pressure of other duties, and the Librarian would be glad to have his attention drawn to any errors.

CHAS. LEIGH.

RICHARD COPLEY CHRISTIE

INTRODUCTION

By R. C. CHRISTIE

The present volume makes no claim to be either a model catalogue or the catalogue of a model collection of books. It is only a descriptive list of that part of the owner's library which he wishes to be kept together after his death by the Institution to which, on the happening of that event, it will be entrusted. While the formation of this library has been one of the greatest pleasures of his life, and while he hopes that it contains many volumes of interest, and at least some rarities not easily met with, yet its owner is, alas! obliged to confess that the volumes that are of the greatest rarity and that fetch the greatest prices, from £100 to £5000 according to Mr. Quaritch's valuation, are conspicuous by their absence. Those whose interest extends no further than books such as these in the finest condition in the bindings made for Grolier, Maioli and Canevari, are not invited to look into this catalogue. But it is hoped that the Collector as well as the student will find both in the books and in their catalogue something to interest and possibly afford him some information which may be new to him.

Although some of the volumes are what are called "Collector's books," yet the Collection as a whole will be found to have a uniform aim and a principle of unity pervading it. It has been formed with a view of illustrating and enabling its owner to study the Renaissance, and especially the classical Renaissance of Italy and France, and it will be found that the greater number of the volumes bear upon this subject, and more particularly upon certain departments, and the lives, labours and works of a certain limited number of scholars upon whose lives and labours I had at one time hoped to write something. Étienne Dolet, Aldus, Pomponatius, Clenardus, Giulio Camillo, Ramus, Sturm, Postel, J. C. Scaliger, Paul Scaliger, Giordano Bruno, Vanini, Scioppius, Hortensio Lando are some of those, and of the writings of each of them an unusually large collection—with their biographies, and the writings of their commentators and their opponents—will be found in my library, while of several—Dolet, Camillo, Ramus, Sturm, Postel and Scioppius—I believe that no other library in England or on the Continent contains a more nearly complete collection, and I indulge the hope that some time, perhaps in the course of the next century, some student may feel interest in these scholars—veritable "oubliés et dedaignés"—and may find these collections available for making their dry bones live. For, of those I have named, I have only accomplished a complete monograph of one—Dolet—with essays,[1] perhaps as full as the world cares for, on Pomponatius and Clenardus and short papers, little more than contributions, to the biographies of Aldus, Bruno and Vanini.

[1] Reprinted in the volume of "Selected essays," 1902.

The revival of the study of Greek and the early history of Greek scholarship and Greek topography forms a very leading subject of the books here catalogued. Nearly every Greek editio princeps is included, many of them of great rarity and critical value, others of which the preface is an important contribution to the history and progress of Greek scholarship, and, in addition to editiones principes, many volumes of those printers whose Greek types and rare Greek productions are of great interest to both scholars and collectors, such as Calliergi, Thierry Martens, Simon de Colines and Conrad Néobar.

Of Latin editiones principes a certain number will be found, and many rare incunabula from the presses of Italian printers, in whom I have always felt a very special interest—Sweynheym and Pannartz, Jenson, and Vindelin de Spire.

Of the Aldine Series I believe every book of interest and merit will be found with the exception of the two Greek "Horæ" of 1497 and 1521, the first Virgil, and the Nonnus, and these volumes alone constitute a tolerably complete library of the Greek, Latin and vernacular literature of Italy during the 16th century, while several of the volumes are of the greatest rarity, and were introuvable both to Renouard and to A. F. Didot.

The books written and printed by Étienne Dolet are forty-five in number; seven of these are the only copies known, and of ten others a single other copy is recorded.

The large collection of books printed by Sebastian Gryphius will probably excite some surprise, a considerable number of them being absolutely worthless editions of Latin Classics and even less interesting translations of Greek authors. But, though of very little interest, they were collected with a special purpose, namely, in part as bearing on the life and surroundings of Étienne Dolet, partly with a view of discovering if possible the books which bore traces of his hand as their editor or corrector. But alas! of nearly one hundred volumes of Latin Classics in my possession printed by S. Gryphius between 1533 and 1546, I have only found one which has clear marks of Dolet's editorship, the "Orationes Ciceronis" of 1536. In this way, my interest arose in the books of Gryphius, and at one time I hoped to form a tolerably complete collection of these, but though my collection is more extensive than any other except that in the public library at Lyons, it is, I am sorry to say, still wanting in a large number of volumes. But though most of the classics of Gryphius have fallen into the category of "old books" only, yet the prefaces of many of them are of much interest to the student of the history of Learning in France, while the original works printed by him constitute in themselves a remarkable and distinguished history of Learning in the South of France during 40 years; a few are also of distinguished rarity. In one of them I take special pride. Of the spurious "Cuspidii Testamentum, item, Contractus Venditionis" edited by Rabelais in 1532 one other copy—that in the Bibliothèque Nationale, and a very inferior copy to mine— is known,[1] while of the (not very interesting) tract of our countryman Volusenus, "Commentatio quædam theologica," 1539, the copy I possess appears to be unique.

Horace was the first Latin classic whom I read with real pleasure, and my affection

[1] A third copy was sold at Sotheby's in February, 1908. (See The Bibliophile, vol. i. p. 111, where it is described as "a Lyonnese volume of 1532, containing the first published work of Rabelais, an Epistle to Almaricus Buchardus.")—C.L.

[2] The Bibliothèque Nationale also possesses a copy, the date of which has been altered, at a remote period, to 1549, and three other copies are recorded in Tome VIII. of Baudrier's "Bibliographie lyonnaise."—C.L.

for him led me nearly fifty years since to aim at a collection of the different editions of his works. I now possess seven hundred and ninety-eight volumes of editions, translations and commentaries, the earliest being the Milan edition of 1474. But of modern and absolutely uninteresting editions and translations the number is so great, that I long since gave up purchasing more of them, and confined my attention to those of the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth centuries, only procuring those of the eighteenth and nineteenth that were distinguished by special merit.

While some will be surprised to find in this collection so few of those books which "no gentleman's library should be without," others will wonder at the appearance of any of them and still more at the presence of a certain number of volumes which are eminently commonplace, and common editions, and have perhaps neither interest nor value. In fact they are books which—generally from old associations—have to me a special interest, and which, after being for so many years on my shelves, I still like to think will repose with their old associates. It was in the pages of the copy of the "London Magazine" included in this collection, that I first—nearly sixty years since—made acquaintance with Lamb, Hazlitt, De Quincey and Hood, for the first of whom I have ever since had the warmest affection, and for the second the greatest admiration. The copy of Boswell's "Johnson" I was wont to read fifty years since, while of more recent books there are many old friends of my Oxford life of which I like to see the "old familiar faces," and to think that they will at least for some years to come retain their places with their fellows.

In Bibliography and Literary History—still bearing, however, specially on the learned literature and the biography of learned men of the sixteenth century—there will be found a considerable number of books which, without being "rarities," are not of common occurrence, and will, I believe, be found of use to those who make use of this "Collection" and this Catalogue.
